

#	Segment (Narration)	Image Prompt	Camera	Lighting	Mood / Tone	Character Action	Video Motion
■■ HOOK ■■
1	Think about the last time you received money you didn't expect.	Medium shot, warm beige background. The main character stands facing slightly left, eyes closed in thought. Inside the transparent skull, the pink brain leans back in a relaxed thinking pose. A soft thought bubble begins to form above the character's head, empty for now.	Medium shot, centered	Warm beige, soft ceiling spotlight	Intimate and introspective — the hook is addressed directly to the viewer	Character thinking; brain in relaxed pose; empty thought bubble forming	Static. The thought bubble slowly inflates above the character's head. 2s.
2	A bonus. A gift. A gambling win. An inheritance. A refund of any kind.	Wide shot, white background. Four small floating icons appear in a horizontal row inside the thought bubble: a bonus envelope with a green plus sign, a gift box with ribbon, a poker chip, a will document. Each icon glows softly. Bold label above: 'UNEXPECTED MONEY.'	Wide shot	Flat, white	Recognition — the viewer maps their own experience	Four windfall icons floating in thought bubble row	Static. Icons appear one by one from left to right; each pulses once on arrival. 3s.
3	Now think about how long it took you to spend it.	Medium shot. The main character looks at a flat wall calendar. The calendar shows days being crossed off rapidly — fast, almost frantic. A green money icon appears on day 1 and is gone by day 3. Expression: slightly sheepish self-recognition.	Medium shot	Flat, warm	Gentle self-incrimination — the viewer recognizes themselves	Character watching calendar; money gone in days; sheepish expression	Animated. Calendar pages flip quickly; money icon disappears by day 3. 3s.
4	Now think about how long it would take you to save that same amount from your monthly salary.	Medium shot. Same calendar — but now a tiny coin is added each month, slowly. The accumulation bar beside it grows painfully slowly. Bold label: 'SAME AMOUNT.' Character watches with mild exasperation.	Medium shot	Flat, warm	The contrast lands — the gap is felt before it is named	Character watching slow monthly coin accumulation; exasperated expression	Animated. One coin added per month; accumulation bar inches upward slowly. 3s.
5	The gap between those two numbers is not a personality flaw.	Wide shot, white background. Two bars side by side: left bar labeled 'WINDFALL SPENT' — short, fast, red. Right bar labeled 'SALARY SAVED' — tall, slow, blue. A bold bracket spans the gap between them: 'NOT A FLAW.' The main character stands to the side, arms open.	Wide shot	Flat, white	Relief and curiosity — the reframe begins	Two contrasting bars; NOT A FLAW bracket; character arms open	Static. Bracket appears; label drops in. Character opens arms. 2s.
6	It is one of the most studied phenomena in behavioral economics.	Wide shot. A flat library interior — shelves of research papers and journals. A single spotlight illuminates a stack of papers at the center. Bold label on the spine: 'BEHAVIORAL ECONOMICS.' The brain character peeks from behind the stack, intrigued.	Wide shot, library interior	Warm spotlight on paper stack	Authority established — this is science, not opinion	Library shelves; spotlit paper stack; brain peeking from behind	Static. Brain peeks further around the stack. 2s.
7	It has been replicated in dozens of countries, across every income level, in people who manage other people's money for a living.	Wide diagram. A flat world map with glowing dots scattered across every continent. Below the map: three horizontal bars labeled 'ALL COUNTRIES,' 'ALL INCOME LEVELS,' 'ALL PROFESSIONS' — each fully filled green. Bold label: 'UNIVERSAL.'	Wide diagram shot	Flat, white, green highlights	Scale — this is not a niche finding	World map with global dots; three full green bars; UNIVERSAL label	Static. Dots light up across the map one by one; bars fill. 3s.
8	And it is being used against you right now.	Medium shot of the main character. The brain villain character appears over the character's shoulder — holding a small targeting reticle aimed directly at the character's wallet pocket. Smug expression. The character is unaware. Background fades to dark.	Medium shot	Flat, dark, targeting reticle glow	Threat introduced — the pivot from curiosity to urgency	Brain villain with targeting reticle on character's wallet; character unaware	Static. Reticle locks onto the wallet with a soft click. 2s.
■■ THE IMPOSSIBILITY ■■

#	SEGMENT (NARRATION)	IMAGE PROMPT	CAMERA	LIGHTING	MOOD / TONE	CHARACTER ACTION	VIDEO MOTION
9	Here is what makes this strange.	Medium shot, direct address. The main character turns fully to face the camera. Expression: focused and composed. The brain inside the skull has resumed its upright, alert position. White background.	Medium shot, direct address	Flat, white	Pivot — the analytical frame opens	Character facing camera directly; brain alert and upright	Static. Direct eye contact held steady. 2s.
10	Money is money.	Close-up, white background. Two identical flat coin icons side by side. Between them: a bold equals sign. Nothing else. Clean, simple, almost mathematical.	Close-up, centered	Flat, white	The axiom stated plainly — before it is destroyed	Two identical coins with equals sign between them	Static. Equals sign pulses once. 2s.
11	A hundred euros from your salary and a hundred euros from a bonus are identical objects.	Wide shot. Two identical euro banknotes side by side. Left note labeled 'SALARY.' Right note labeled 'BONUS.' Both notes are identical in every detail — same color, same size, same value. A bold centered bracket: 'IDENTICAL.'	Wide shot	Flat, white	The logical premise — stated before the paradox lands	Two identical banknotes; SALARY / BONUS labels; IDENTICAL bracket	Static. Bracket appears; both notes glow softly in sync. 2s.
12	They buy the same things. They have the same value. There is no rational reason to treat them differently.	Wide diagram. Three rows of identical icons stacked: top row — same shopping cart (both notes buy the same things); middle row — same value meter (both at 100); bottom row — a balanced scale. Bold label: 'NO RATIONAL DIFFERENCE.'	Wide stacked diagram	Flat, white	Logic complete — the paradox is ready	Three rows of identical icons proving logical equivalence; label	Static. Rows appear one by one from top to bottom. 3s.
13	And yet every human being on Earth does.	Wide shot. A globe at center. Around it: a ring of small character figures of every kind — different clothes, different sizes, different contexts. Each has the same split thought bubble: SALARY (careful) vs BONUS (fast). Bold label: 'EVERY HUMAN BEING.'	Wide shot, globe center	Flat, white	Universal — no exceptions	Globe with ring of diverse characters; all showing same split thought bubble	Static. Character ring appears; thought bubbles populate. 3s.
14	Not sometimes. Consistently. Predictably. In ways that can be measured, mapped, and — by the right industry — exploited.	Wide shot, white background. Three bold stacked words: 'CONSISTENTLY.' / 'PREDICTABLY.' / 'EXPLOITABLY.' Each word drops in as its own statement. To the right: a small industry figure with a clipboard, already taking notes.	Wide shot	Flat, white	Escalation — the threat is being quantified	Three stacked words dropping in; industry figure with clipboard	Static. Each word drops in with a half-second gap; industry figure ticks clipboard. 3s.
15	This is the story of how that happens. And who built their business model on top of it.	Wide shot, dark background. A simple building silhouette with a bold label: 'BUILT ON YOUR BRAIN.' The main character stands small in front of it, looking up. The brain villain watches from a window at the top.	Wide shot	Dark, atmospheric	The stakes established — a whole industry is waiting	Building labeled BUILT ON YOUR BRAIN; character small below; brain at window	Static. Building silhouette holds; brain figure appears at window. 3s.
■■ THE DINNER PARTY ■■
16	It started not in a laboratory, but at a dinner party.	Wide establishing shot, warm interior. A cosy flat cartoon dinner party scene — a round table set for dinner in the background, guests milling about. Warm amber ceiling light. A small label in the corner: 'ROCHESTER, 1975.' Intimate and social.	Wide establishing shot	Warm amber, soft interior light	Unexpected origin — the science begins in an ordinary room	Dinner party scene; round table in background; guests; 1975 label	Static. Warm scene glows softly. 2s.
17	1975. Richard Thaler, a young economist at the University of Rochester, was hosting colleagues for dinner.	Medium shot. A cartoon Thaler figure — young, slightly disheveled, warm expression, tie loosened — stands at the entrance of his living room welcoming three colleague figures. A bold label: 'RICHARD THALER · UNIVERSITY OF ROCHESTER.' Warm domestic light.	Medium shot, entrance	Flat, warm amber	The protagonist arrives — young and unheroic	Young Thaler welcoming colleagues; name label; warm domestic scene	Static. Name label fades in. Thaler gestures welcomingly. 2s.
18	He had put a bowl of cashews on the coffee table as a pre-dinner snack.	Close-up of a flat coffee table. A simple round bowl sits at the center, filled with cartoon cashews — cream-colored, slightly curved. Warm light catches the bowl. Nothing else on the table. Clean and ordinary.	Close-up, centered overhead	Flat, warm spotlight on bowl	Ordinary setup — before the extraordinary observation	Cashew bowl on coffee table; clean close-up	Static. Bowl sits quietly at center. 2s.

#	SEGMENT (NARRATION)	IMAGE PROMPT	CAMERA	LIGHTING	MOOD / TONE	CHARACTER ACTION	VIDEO MOTION
19	His guests were eating them. Too enthusiastically.	Medium-wide shot. Three colleague figures crowd around the coffee table, each reaching into the bowl with animated enthusiasm. Hands overlapping. The bowl is visibly depleting. Their expressions: pure snacking joy, completely unrestrained.	Medium-wide shot	Flat, warm	The problem emerging — visible and slightly absurd	Three guests raiding cashew bowl enthusiastically; depleting rapidly	Animated. Hands reach in repeatedly; bowl level drops visibly. 3s.
20	Thaler worried they would ruin their appetite before the meal.	Medium shot of Thaler standing to the side, looking at the guests, then glancing at the dining table set with a proper meal in the background. A small thought bubble: a dinner plate with a question mark above it. Expression: mild concern.	Medium shot	Flat, warm	Practical worry — before the intellectual revelation	Thaler glancing from guests to dinner table; worried thought bubble	Static. Thaler's gaze moves from guests to dining table. 2s.
21	So he took the bowl away.	Medium shot. Thaler lifts the cashew bowl cleanly off the coffee table with both hands. The guests watch. Simple action, ordinary moment. The table is now empty.	Medium shot	Flat, warm	The action — simple and unremarkable	Thaler lifting cashew bowl off table; guests watching	Static. Thaler holds bowl; table now empty. 2s.
22	And the room relaxed.	Wide shot of the room. The three guests — who were leaning forward eagerly a moment ago — have all visibly relaxed. Shoulders dropped. Postures open. One lets out a small exhale. Expressions: quiet relief. Warm light.	Wide shot	Flat, warm	The paradox revealed — relief at losing something free	Three guests visibly relaxing; shoulders dropping; quiet exhales	Static. All three settle into relaxed postures simultaneously. 3s.
23	Here is what stopped him cold.	Close-up of Thaler's face. His expression has shifted — the casual host expression replaced by something still and focused. A small visible freeze in the frame. The room behind him continues warmly but he is in a different mental space.	Close-up	Flat, warm	The intellectual arrest — the moment of insight beginning	Thaler's face freezing into focused stillness; room warm behind	Static. Expression holds in frozen focus. 2s.
24	Every person in that room was a trained economist. And every single one of them had just expressed relief at having a free good removed from their presence.	Wide shot. The three guests are now shown with floating credential labels: PhD ECONOMICS, UNIVERSITY PROFESSOR, ECONOMIC ADVISOR. Below each: a small relief icon (exhale emoji style). Bold connecting label: 'FREE GOOD REMOVED → RELIEF.'	Wide shot	Flat, warm	The paradox named — rational people doing irrational things	Guests with economist credentials floating; relief icons below each	Static. Credential labels and relief icons appear simultaneously. 3s.
25	Rational agents don't do that.	Wide shot, white background. Bold centered text: 'RATIONAL AGENTS DON'T DO THAT.' A large textbook icon with 'ECONOMICS 101' on the cover sits beside it, open to a relevant page. Clean and authoritative.	Wide shot	Flat, white	The axiom violated — stated plainly	Bold statement; economics textbook open beside it	Static. Text appears with weight; textbook open. 2s.
26	If you wanted to stop eating cashews, you stopped. The bowl being there was irrelevant.	Wide split panel. Left: a character reaching for the cashew bowl, then simply pulling their hand back — easy, clean. Right: the bowl sitting untouched, irrelevant. Bold label: 'SHOULD BE IRRELEVANT.'	Wide split panel	Flat, white	The logical case — what should have happened	Character easily stopping vs bowl sitting irrelevant; label	Static. Both panels hold; label appears between them. 2s.
27	Except it wasn't. And everyone in the room knew it.	Wide shot. The earlier relaxed guests are shown again — but now each has a small thought bubble containing a tiny cashew with a red minus sign. They knew. They all knew. Warm light returns.	Wide shot	Flat, warm	The shared truth — wordless but universal	Guests with thought bubbles showing cashew awareness; warm light	Static. Thought bubbles appear simultaneously above each guest. 2s.
28	He wrote that moment in his notes.	Close-up of an open notebook. Thaler's hand writes in bold cartoon script: 'BOWL REMOVED — RELIEF — WHY?' The pen underlines 'WHY?' twice. The rest of the page is blank — the question dominates.	Close-up, overhead	Flat, warm spotlight on notebook	The question crystallizes — the research begins	Thaler writing WHY? in notebook; underlined twice; page otherwise blank	Static. Pen finishes writing; WHY? holds center stage. 2s.
29	He had just watched a room full of rational economists behave irrationally — and feel grateful about it.	Wide shot, warm interior. The guests are shown again, relaxed, smiling, grateful — completely unaware of the paradox they just demonstrated. Thaler stands apart, notebook in hand, watching with a new kind of attention.	Wide shot	Flat, warm	The observation complete — the paradox documented	Grateful guests unaware; Thaler watching with notebook; new attention	Static. Scene warm and ordinary; Thaler's focus is the only tension. 3s.

#	SEGMENT (NARRATION)	IMAGE PROMPT	CAMERA	LIGHTING	MOOD / TONE	CHARACTER ACTION	VIDEO MOTION
30	He spent the next decade trying to understand why.	Wide shot. A simple desk scene with a wall calendar behind Thaler. Years flip: 1975 → 1976 → 1977 → ... → 1985. Papers accumulate. Books multiply. Thaler's expression across the years: determined, absorbed, occasionally frustrated.	Wide shot, decade montage	Flat, warm office light	Time and obsession — the decade of pursuit	Calendar years flipping; papers accumulating; Thaler's determined expression	Animated. Calendar years flip steadily; paper piles grow. 3s.
31	Mainstream economics had one central assumption: people make decisions based on their total wealth.	Wide shot. A large flat economics textbook open at the center of the frame. A highlighted passage reads: 'AGENTS OPTIMIZE BASED ON TOTAL WEALTH.' Bold label below: 'THE CENTRAL ASSUMPTION.' Clean academic white.	Wide shot	Flat, white	The establishment's position — before it is dismantled	Open textbook with highlighted central assumption; label below	Static. Highlighted text glows steadily. 2s.
32	Not where the money came from. Not what category it was in. Total wealth.	Wide diagram. Three labeled categories crossed out with red X marks: 'WHERE IT CAME FROM X' / 'WHAT CATEGORY X' / 'CONTEXT X.' Below them, one surviving label circled in blue: 'TOTAL WEALTH ✓.'	Wide diagram	Flat, white, red X marks	The model made explicit — and fragile	Three X'd categories; one surviving TOTAL WEALTH circled	Static. X marks appear one by one; TOTAL WEALTH circle last. 3s.
■■ THE THEORY ■■
33	Thaler kept finding violations.	Medium shot of Thaler at his desk, a clipboard in hand. Each item on the clipboard has a red X replacing what should be a checkmark. His expression: the particular focus of someone who keeps finding the same impossible thing.	Medium shot	Flat, warm office	Accumulation of evidence — the violations multiply	Thaler with clipboard full of red X violations; focused expression	Static. Clipboard covered in red X marks; Thaler taps one with his pen. 2s.
34	People would walk twenty minutes to save five euros on a fifteen-euro item — but would not cross the street to save five euros on a five-hundred-euro purchase.	Wide split panel. Left: a character cheerfully walking a long road to a small shop to save €5 on a €15 item — a big effort for a small saving. Right: the same character standing beside a €500 store, refusing to cross the street to save €5 — small effort, same saving. Bold bracket: 'IDENTICAL SAVING. OPPOSITE BEHAVIOR.'	Wide split panel	Flat, white	The violation made visual — immediately absurd	Long walk for €5 on €15 left; refusing to cross street for €5 on €500 right	Static. Both panels hold; bracket appears; absurdity is immediate. 3s.
35	The saving was identical. The effort was identical. The behavior was completely different.	Wide stacked diagram. Three rows: 'SAVING: €5 = €5 ✓' / 'EFFORT: DIFFERENT X' — wait, no. 'SAVING: IDENTICAL ✓' / 'EFFORT: IDENTICAL ✓' / 'BEHAVIOR: COMPLETELY DIFFERENT X.' The bottom row breaks the pattern with a bold red X.	Wide stacked diagram	Flat, white, red bottom row	The logic of the paradox — laid out precisely	Three-row comparison; top two match; bottom row breaks with red X	Static. Rows appear top to bottom; red X on bottom row lands hard. 3s.
36	He noticed that people held expensive bottles of wine in their cellars for decades — wine they would never sell for what it was worth and would never pay what it now costs to replace.	Wide shot of a flat wine cellar interior. Dusty bottles line the shelves, each with a price tag. One prominent bottle has two floating labels: 'WOULD NOT SELL FOR: €200' and 'WOULD NOT PAY: €200.' The same number on both tags. Thaler stands in the doorway, observing.	Wide shot, cellar interior	Flat, dim warm cellar light	Another violation — the irrationality is specific and vivid	Wine cellar; bottle with identical would-not-sell / would-not-pay tags; Thaler observing	Static. Both price tags visible and equal; Thaler notes quietly. 3s.
37	They held both positions simultaneously. Rational agents cannot do that.	Wide shot, white background. A simple Venn diagram. Left circle: 'WOULD NOT SELL AT MARKET PRICE.' Right circle: 'WOULD NOT BUY AT MARKET PRICE.' The overlap section is highlighted red and labeled: 'IMPOSSIBLE — BUT REAL.'	Wide diagram shot	Flat, white, red overlap	The formal impossibility — the research is building	Venn diagram with impossible overlap highlighted; IMPOSSIBLE BUT REAL label	Static. Overlap section highlights; label appears. 2s.
38	He was seeing the same thing everywhere. People were not tracking total wealth. They were tracking accounts.	Wide shot. Thaler surrounded by floating examples — the cashews, the calculator, the wine, the grocery store — each connected by a line to a central insight bubble: 'MENTAL ACCOUNTS.' Bold and central.	Wide shot	Flat, warm	The pattern recognized — the theory crystallizes	Thaler surrounded by examples; all connecting to MENTAL ACCOUNTS bubble	Static. Connection lines appear; MENTAL ACCOUNTS bubble glows. 3s.
39	He called it mental accounting.	Medium shot. Thaler at a chalkboard. He writes in bold: 'MENTAL ACCOUNTING.' The letters are large, deliberate, underlined. His expression: the satisfaction of naming something real.	Medium shot	Flat, warm neutral	The naming — the concept becomes real	Thaler writing MENTAL ACCOUNTING at chalkboard; underlined; satisfied expression	Static. Term is bold and prominent at chalkboard center. 2s.

#	SEGMENT (NARRATION)	IMAGE PROMPT	CAMERA	LIGHTING	MOOD / TONE	CHARACTER ACTION	VIDEO MOTION
40	The economics profession told him he was wasting everyone's time.	Wide shot. A conference room of economics professor figures — suits, glasses, arms crossed. One prominent figure at the head of the table points dismissively toward a door. A small Thaler figure stands with his cashew-bowl insight, looking quietly determined.	Wide shot, conference room	Flat, institutional cold light	The dismissal — the underdog moment	Conference room of dismissive economists; pointing figure; determined Thaler	Static. Dismissal gesture is prominent; Thaler's expression holds steady. 3s.
41	In 1985, Thaler ran the experiment that ended the argument.	Wide shot. A clean research lab table. A simple setup: two scenario cards face-down on the table. A clock on the wall shows 1985. Thaler stands beside the table with quiet confidence. Label: 'THE EXPERIMENT · 1985.'	Wide shot, lab table	Flat, cool lab light	Anticipation — the decisive test	Lab table with two scenario cards; 1985 clock; confident Thaler	Static. Date label appears; Thaler's stance is composed. 2s.
42	You have bought a twenty-euro ticket to see a concert. On the way, you lose the ticket.	Wide split scene. Left half: the character holds a concert ticket — bold €20 visible. Right half: the same character walking, the ticket slipping from a pocket and falling to the ground. Expression shifts from happy to dismayed.	Wide split scene	Flat, warm	The setup — specific and relatable	Character with ticket left; ticket falling from pocket right	Static. Ticket falls in right panel; dismayed expression. 2s.
■■ THE EXPERIMENTS ■■
43	Do you buy another?	Medium shot of the character standing at a box office window. The ticket seller holds up a new ticket. The character hesitates — thought bubble shows an internal calculation. A bold question mark floats above. The moment is suspended.	Medium shot	Flat, warm	The question — the viewer asks themselves before the answer comes	Character hesitating at box office; thought bubble calculating; question mark	Static. Question mark pulses once. 2s.
44	Most people say no.	Wide shot, white background. Bold text: 'MOST PEOPLE: NO.' A large red X dominates the right side. The character figure turns away from the box office, empty-handed. Clean, definitive.	Wide shot	Flat, white, red X	The answer — decisive and surprising to some	Bold NO text; red X; character turning away from box office	Static. Red X drops in; character turns. 2s.
45	Same situation. You are on your way to buy a twenty-euro ticket at the door. On the way, you lose a twenty-euro note from your wallet.	Wide split scene. Left half: character walking toward a concert venue, wallet visible. Right half: a €20 note slips from the wallet and falls to the ground. The loss is identical — but the source is different.	Wide split scene	Flat, warm	The parallel — the viewer begins to see it	Character walking toward venue left; €20 note falling from wallet right	Static. Note falls; character notices with dismay. 2s.
46	Do you still go?	Medium shot of the same character, now standing at the venue door. Ticket still available. The character pauses — thought bubble shows a brief calculation. Same question mark floats above. The moment mirrors the earlier one exactly.	Medium shot	Flat, warm	The mirror question — the comparison is primed	Character at venue door; thought bubble; question mark floating	Static. Question mark pulses — echoing the earlier beat. 2s.
47	Most people say yes.	Wide shot, white background. Bold text: 'MOST PEOPLE: YES.' A large green checkmark. The character figure buys the ticket, enters the venue. Clean, definitive — and jarring against the previous answer.	Wide shot	Flat, white, green check	The contradiction — stated plainly	Bold YES text; green check; character buying ticket and entering	Static. Green check appears; contrast with the red X is immediate. 2s.
48	In both cases you have lost twenty euros. In both cases attending costs another twenty. The math is identical.	Wide diagram. Two parallel equation lines: 'SCENARIO A: Lost €20 + Pay €20 = €40 spent' / 'SCENARIO B: Lost €20 + Pay €20 = €40 spent.' Both lines identical. Bold label: 'MATHEMATICALLY IDENTICAL.' The equations glow in sync.	Wide diagram shot	Flat, white	The math — undeniable and exposed	Two identical equations; MATHEMATICALLY IDENTICAL label	Static. Both equations glow in sync; label appears. 3s.
49	But in the first case, the concert budget — the mental account — has already been spent.	Wide shot. A flat mental ledger appears — a simple account book. The CONCERT ACCOUNT page shows: 'BALANCE: €20. STATUS: SPENT.' A red closed-folder icon appears beside it. The account is closed.	Wide shot	Flat, white, red closed folder	The mental account made visible — the mechanism begins	Mental ledger; CONCERT ACCOUNT spent and closed; red folder	Static. Red closed-folder icon appears; account balance zeroed. 2s.
50	Paying again feels like paying forty euros for a twenty-euro experience.	Close-up of a concert ticket with a price tag. The tag reads €20 — but a second hand is adding a second €20 sticker on top, making it €40. The character stares at it, pained. Expression: this is wrong.	Close-up	Flat, white, double price tag	The felt cost — visceral and specific	Concert ticket with €20 becoming €40 via double sticker; pained expression	Static. Second price sticker appears; character's pain expression holds. 2s.

#	SEGMENT (NARRATION)	IMAGE PROMPT	CAMERA	LIGHTING	MOOD / TONE	CHARACTER ACTION	VIDEO MOTION
51	In the second case, the twenty euros came from the general cash account. The concert account is untouched.	Wide shot. Two mental ledgers side by side. Left: GENERAL CASH ACCOUNT — shows a €20 debit, still open, plenty of balance remaining. Right: CONCERT ACCOUNT — untouched, full, green. The concert account is intact.	Wide shot, dual ledgers	Flat, white, green CONCERT account	The account separation — made visible	Two ledgers; CASH debited left; CONCERT untouched green right	Static. Both ledgers visible; contrast is clear. 3s.
52	Same money. Same outcome. Completely different decision.	Wide shot, white background. Three bold stacked lines: 'SAME MONEY.' / 'SAME OUTCOME.' / 'COMPLETELY DIFFERENT DECISION.' The first two lines are calm and blue. The third line is bold red — the rupture.	Wide shot	Flat, white, red third line	The core paradox distilled — three lines, complete	Three stacked lines; first two blue calm; third red dissonant	Static. Lines appear one at a time; third lands with color contrast. 3s.
53	Thaler ran the same logic through bonuses, gambling wins, inheritances, gifts. Every single time, the same result.	Wide diagram. Four new scenarios in small panels — a bonus envelope, a casino win, an inheritance document, a gift box — each with the same outcome arrow: 'SPENT FASTER.' A bold unifying label: 'EVERY TIME. SAME RESULT.'	Wide diagram, four panels	Flat, white	Universality established — the pattern holds across contexts	Four windfall types; each with SPENT FASTER arrow; unified label	Static. Four panels appear; outcome arrows point right simultaneously. 3s.
54	The brain does not process money as money.	Close-up of the brain character inside the skull, shaking its head firmly. Beside it: a bold equation with a red X: 'MONEY ≠ MONEY (to the brain).' Expression: the smug satisfaction of knowing something the character doesn't.	Close-up	Flat, white	The mechanism stated — from inside the skull	Brain character shaking head; MONEY ≠ MONEY label with red X	Static. Brain shakes head; equation holds. 2s.
55	It processes money as money-from-here or money-from-there.	Wide diagram. A central BRAIN icon. Two arrows lead outward: left arrow labeled 'MONEY-FROM-HERE (EARNED)' in muted blue; right arrow labeled 'MONEY-FROM-THERE (WINDFALL)' in warm gold. The two streams are distinct and separate.	Wide diagram shot	Flat, white, dual stream colors	The filing system exposed — two streams, not one	Brain with two separate money streams; EARNED blue / WINDFALL gold	Static. Both arrows appear; streams hold separate colors. 3s.
56	And the behavior follows the account, not the amount.	Wide diagram. Two scenarios at bottom: ACCOUNT A → CAREFUL BEHAVIOR. ACCOUNT B → FAST BEHAVIOR. The amount in both is identical (€500 each), shown explicitly. The account label is the only variable. Bold label: 'ACCOUNT DETERMINES BEHAVIOR.'	Wide diagram shot	Flat, white	The rule stated — the key insight crystallized	Two accounts; identical amounts; different behavior outcomes; rule label	Static. Rule label drops in boldly. 3s.
57	Here is what is happening inside.	Medium shot. The main character turns to camera with an explanatory gesture — one hand open toward the viewer. The brain inside the skull sits forward, ready to demonstrate. White background.	Medium shot, direct address	Flat, white	The mechanism section opens — the explanation is about to go deeper	Character with open explanatory gesture; brain leaning forward ready	Static. Character's gesture holds invitingly. 2s.
58	When you earn money through labor — through time, through effort, through sacrifice — it carries a cost signal.	Wide shot. The character working — at a desk, clearly tired but focused. Each euro earned has a small red signal icon attached: a tiny exclamation mark. The earned money is tagged. Warm work lighting.	Wide shot, work setting	Flat, warm work light	Earned money has weight — felt and marked	Character working; each earned euro with red cost signal icon attached	Static. Earned euros appear with red signal tags. 2s.
59	Your nervous system registered what it took to produce it. Every euro spent from that account costs something real and felt.	Close-up split panel. Left: the nervous system diagram — a simple signal line from effort to brain to money tag. Right: the character spending from the earned account, a small wince visible. Label: 'REAL AND FELT.'	Close-up split panel	Flat, white	The physical reality of earned spending	Nervous system signal left; character wincing at earned spend right; label	Static. Signal line pulses; wince expression on spending. 2s.
■■ THE MECHANISM ■■
60	When money arrives without labor — a bonus, a gift, a gambling win — it does not carry that signal.	Wide shot. Three money arrivals from above — a bonus envelope, a gift box, a casino chip — falling gently into the character's hands. Each is clean, untagged, no red signal icon. They arrive without cost.	Wide shot	Flat, warm gold arrival light	Windfall money is weightless — no signal attached	Three windfalls arriving from above; no red signal tags; clean arrival	Static. Three items descend gently; character receives them without wincing. 3s.

#	SEGMENT (NARRATION)	IMAGE PROMPT	CAMERA	LIGHTING	MOOD / TONE	CHARACTER ACTION	VIDEO MOTION
61	The brain files it differently. Money in that account moves faster, easier, with almost no friction.	Wide shot. The brain character takes the windfall money and files it in a gold-colored folder labeled 'WINDFALL.' The folder opens easily, money flows in smoothly. Contrasted with the blue 'EARNED' folder which requires more deliberate handling.	Wide shot	Flat, white, gold vs blue folders	The filing made visible — two different systems	Brain filing windfall in gold folder smoothly; contrast with careful earned folder	Static. Gold folder opens easily; money flows in. 2s.
62	Thaler called this the pain of paying.	Medium shot. Thaler at his chalkboard again. He writes in bold: 'PAIN OF PAYING.' Below it, a simple diagram: a payment arrow with a lightning bolt crossing it — the jolt of spending. His expression: this is the key.	Medium shot	Flat, warm neutral	The naming of the core mechanism	Thaler writing PAIN OF PAYING at chalkboard; lightning bolt diagram	Static. Term is bold; lightning bolt diagram appears below. 2s.
63	Cash hurts. You feel it leave your hand.	Close-up. The character's hand extends with a cash note. As it leaves the hand, a small red pain pulse radiates from the palm. The expression: a slight wince. Physical and immediate.	Close-up	Flat, white, red pain pulse	The physical experience — everyone recognizes it	Hand releasing cash; red pain pulse from palm; wince expression	Static. Pain pulse radiates from palm; expression winces slightly. 2s.
64	Cards reduce the pain — the money goes later, abstractly, somewhere in the future.	Wide shot. Same purchase — but now the character taps a card. The pain pulse is smaller, fainter, almost invisible. A ghostly calendar floats in the background — the money will leave later, abstractly. Expression: easy, unconcerned.	Wide shot	Flat, warm, faint future calendar	Reduced friction — the mechanism of cards	Card tap; faint pain pulse; ghostly future calendar; relaxed expression	Static. Card tap; pain pulse barely visible; calendar ghost fades in. 2s.
65	Casino chips reduce it further — they no longer look like money at all.	Wide shot. The character at a casino table, surrounded by chips. Reaching for a stack of chips — no pain pulse at all. Zero. The chips look like colorful discs, nothing like money. The character's expression: completely uninhibited.	Wide shot, casino table	Flat, warm casino light	Chips eliminate the signal — money becomes play	Character at casino with chips; zero pain pulse; uninhibited expression	Static. Character reaches for chips; no pain response visible. 2s.
66	Contactless payment nearly eliminates it entirely.	Close-up of a phone tapping a payment terminal. A single number: €0.00 pain signal (shown as a nearly flat line on a small monitor beside the terminal). The transaction is invisible, instant, painless. Expression: not even registered.	Close-up	Flat, white, near-zero signal	The final step — frictionless money	Phone tap; near-zero pain signal on monitor; transaction barely registered	Static. Tap happens; signal line nearly flat. 2s.
67	Each step away from physical, earned, hard-counted money lowers the pain signal.	Wide descending diagram. Four payment methods left to right: CASH → CARD → CHIPS → CONTACTLESS. Below each: a descending pain signal bar — tall red for cash, progressively shorter and cooler-toned toward contactless. A bold downward arrow: 'PAIN DECREASES.'	Wide diagram shot	Flat, white, descending colors	The spectrum made visible — the design of frictionlessness	Four payment methods with descending pain bars; downward arrow	Static. Bars appear left to right in descending height. 3s.
68	Lower pain means higher spending.	Wide diagram. Two inverse bars: PAIN SIGNAL (going down) on the left, SPENDING AMOUNT (going up) on the right. They move in perfect opposition. Bold label: 'INVERSE RELATIONSHIP.'	Wide diagram shot	Flat, white, inverse bars	The equation — simple and alarming	Two inverse bars; pain down / spending up; INVERSE RELATIONSHIP label	Static. Both bars shown in opposition; label appears. 2s.
69	The account determines the behavior. Always.	Wide shot, white. Bold centered statement: 'THE ACCOUNT DETERMINES THE BEHAVIOR.' Below it, in even bolder font: 'ALWAYS.' The brain character stands beside the statement, arms crossed, smugly certain.	Wide shot	Flat, white	The rule — stated with finality	Bold statement; ALWAYS beneath; brain character arms crossed smugly	Static. ALWAYS appears after main statement; brain holds pose. 2s.
70	Everyone who hears this arrives at the same conclusion.	Wide shot. A row of five diverse character figures, all with identical thought bubbles above their heads — the same conclusion forming simultaneously. The sameness is the point. White background.	Wide shot	Flat, white	The universal misread — everyone makes the same mistake	Row of five characters with identical conclusion thought bubbles forming	Static. All five thought bubbles appear simultaneously. 2s.

#	SEGMENT (NARRATION)	IMAGE PROMPT	CAMERA	LIGHTING	MOOD / TONE	CHARACTER ACTION	VIDEO MOTION
71	So some people are just impulsive. Some people lack discipline. Some people cannot manage money.	Wide shot, white background. Three small character stereotypes in a row with floating labels: 'IMPULSIVE,' 'UNDISCIPLINED,' 'CAN'T MANAGE MONEY.' Each looks slightly ashamed. The labels are condescending and reductive.	Wide shot	Flat, white	The wrong conclusion stated — before it is destroyed	Three stereotyped characters with reductive shame labels	Static. Labels float above each character. 2s.
72	That is not what the research shows.	Wide shot, white background. A massive red X draws itself across the three stereotyped characters and their labels. Bold text replaces them: 'THAT IS NOT WHAT THE RESEARCH SHOWS.' Clean, decisive.	Wide shot	Flat, white, red X	The reframe — delivered with authority	Red X across stereotypes; replacement statement bold and clear	Static. Red X draws across; replacement text appears. 2s.
73	Thaler ran these experiments on economists. On financial advisors. On people who managed other people's money professionally.	Wide shot. Three professional figures in a row — economist with textbooks, financial advisor with charts, fund manager with portfolio. All with impressive credentials floating above. All three have mental accounting icons active in their heads.	Wide shot	Flat, warm professional tones	The experts are not immune — the paradox is universal	Three credentialed professionals; mental accounting icons active in each	Static. Credentials and mental account icons visible simultaneously. 3s.
■■ THE POPULAR MISREADING ■■
74	The mental accounts showed up in all of them.	Wide diagram. The same mental accounting dual-folder system (EARNED blue / WINDFALL gold) appears inside each of the three professional figures' heads — identical in all three. Bold label: 'ALL OF THEM.'	Wide diagram shot	Flat, white	Universality confirmed — expertise offers no protection	Mental accounting folders visible in all three professional heads; ALL OF THEM label	Static. Folders appear in all three heads simultaneously; label appears. 3s.
75	This is not a character flaw. It is architecture.	Wide shot, white background. Two bold statements side by side: 'CHARACTER FLAW X ' crossed out in red / 'ARCHITECTURE ✓' in solid blue. Below, a simple building blueprint — the structure is engineered, not chosen.	Wide shot	Flat, white	The reframe complete — structural not moral	CHARACTER FLAW crossed out; ARCHITECTURE confirmed; blueprint below	Static. Cross-out appears first; ARCHITECTURE label second; blueprint fades in. 3s.
76	Your brain was never designed to treat money as a fungible, interchangeable unit of abstract value.	Wide shot. The brain character inside the skull shakes its head at a floating abstract currency symbol — a generic coin with a question mark. Expression: genuinely confused, not dismissive. The brain was never built for this.	Wide shot	Flat, white	Evolutionary honesty — the brain's real design	Brain character confused by abstract currency symbol; head shaking	Static. Brain shakes head; abstract symbol floats unanswered. 2s.
77	It was designed to track resources the way a hunter tracks resources — by source, by effort, by context.	Wide shot. A flat forest scene. A hunter figure tracks game — but each resource is labeled: THIS KILL (effort-tagged), FOUND FOOD (no tag), SHARED MEAL (context-tagged). The tracking system is visible and specific.	Wide shot, forest setting	Flat, natural warm tones	The evolutionary origin — specific and credible	Hunter tracking labeled resources by source/effort/context in forest	Static. Resource labels appear as hunter approaches each. 3s.
78	A kill you made yourself is worth more than an animal you found already dead. The effort cost something real.	Wide split panel. Left: hunter with a self-made kill — glowing with effort-value tag, held with pride. Right: hunter finding a dead animal — no glow, no tag, treated with less reverence. Same animal. Different value.	Wide split panel	Flat, natural tones	The evolutionary logic — effort creates perceived value	Hunter with self-kill (glowing) left vs found animal (no glow) right	Static. Effort-value glow contrast is immediate. 2s.
79	Money is the modern version of the same system.	Wide shot. The forest scene morphs smoothly into a modern city scene. The hunter figure becomes the main character. The resource labels stay identical: EARNED (effort-tagged), BONUS (no tag). The system is the same — only the wrapper changed.	Wide shot, forest-to-city morph	Flat, transitioning warm tones	The connection — ancient system, modern context	Forest morphing into city; hunter becoming character; labels unchanged	Static. Morph holds at midpoint; both contexts visible. 3s.
80	And the system has been mapped.	Wide shot, white background. A complete diagram of the mental accounting system — all accounts labeled, all triggers identified, all behaviors charted. Every entry point marked. A corporate figure stands over the map with a satisfied expression. The map is not academic. It is operational.	Wide shot	Flat, white	The threat returns — the system is in enemy hands	Complete mental accounting map; corporate figure with satisfied expression over it	Static. Map is fully detailed; corporate figure's satisfaction is clear. 3s.

#	SEGMENT (NARRATION)	IMAGE PROMPT	CAMERA	LIGHTING	MOOD / TONE	CHARACTER ACTION	VIDEO MOTION
81	In the 1980s, casinos discovered something.	Wide establishing shot of a flat 1980s casino floor — card tables, slot machines, soft neon light. A group of casino management figures in suits huddle around a table, examining data. Label: '1980s.'	Wide establishing shot	Flat, 1980s neon warmth	The industry story begins — specific and grounded	1980s casino floor; management figures examining data; era label	Static. Casino scene glows softly; huddle of figures focused on data. 2s.
82	When chips look and feel too much like real money, players slow down.	Wide shot. A casino table. A player reaches for chips that look very coin-like — heavy, metal-looking, realistic. The player's hand hesitates. A pain signal fires faintly from the palm. A small graph beside the table: BET SIZE drops when chips feel real.	Wide shot	Flat, casino light, faint pain signal	The discovery — the friction point identified	Player hesitating at realistic chips; faint pain signal; bet-size graph dropping	Static. Hesitation is visible; graph shows correlation. 3s.
83	So they engineered the texture. The weight. The color.	Close-up of a casino chip design process — a flat blueprint panel. Three separate design iterations shown: texture test, weight calibration dial, color spectrum. Each labeled with a deliberate design choice. This is engineering, not aesthetics.	Close-up, blueprint layout	Flat, technical light	The deliberate design — every property chosen	Chip design blueprint; texture, weight, color engineering panels	Static. Three design panels crisp and labeled. 2s.
84	The exact sensory point where a chip feels real enough to hold and fake enough to throw across a table.	Wide shot. A chip in a hand — the perfect chip. A split diagram shows: too real (left, player hesitates) / too fake (left player ignores) / OPTIMAL ZONE (center, player throws freely). The optimal chip sits in the center zone.	Wide shot, sensory diagram	Flat, white, optimal zone highlighted	The engineering target — specific and chilling	Three-zone chip diagram; optimal zone highlighted; freely thrown chip at center	Static. Optimal zone highlighted; chip in center glows. 2s.
■■ THE INDUSTRY ■■
85	That is not a design aesthetic. That is applied mental accounting.	Wide shot, white background. A casino chip blueprint with a bold stamp across it: 'APPLIED MENTAL ACCOUNTING.' The corporate figure from earlier stands beside it with arms crossed. The stamp is official. This is documented.	Wide shot	Flat, white, bold stamp	The naming — the exploitation is identified	Chip blueprint with APPLIED MENTAL ACCOUNTING stamp; corporate figure	Static. Stamp appears with weight; corporate figure holds steady. 2s.
86	The same logic runs every loyalty points program you have ever been enrolled in.	Wide shot. A row of loyalty cards — airline, coffee shop, hotel, supermarket. Each card glows faintly gold: the windfall account is activated. The character holds one with a familiar, slightly proud expression. They feel rewarded.	Wide shot	Flat, white, gold glow on cards	Universal application — the viewer's own experience	Row of loyalty cards glowing gold; character holding one with pride	Static. All cards glow simultaneously; character's expression: familiar recognition. 3s.
87	The points feel like a bonus — like money you found rather than money you earned.	Wide split panel. Left: points accumulating — labeled 'FOUND MONEY' with no cost signal, gold and light. Right: the equivalent cash spent to earn those points — labeled 'EARNED MONEY' with a cost signal, blue and weighty. Same value. Different feel.	Wide split panel	Flat, white, gold left / blue right	The misclassification — points are not windfalls	Points as found money (gold, light) vs cash cost (blue, heavy); same value	Static. Both panels hold; value equivalence labeled. 3s.
88	So you spend them on upgrades you would never pay cash for. The friction disappears. The margin increases.	Wide shot. Three panels in sequence: character upgrading a flight seat with points (happy, no hesitation) → same upgrade offered in cash (character recoils, declines) → airline margin meter rising. The sequence is tight and complete.	Wide triptych	Flat, white	The exploit in action — the behavior and the profit	Points upgrade (happy) → cash upgrade (refuses) → airline margin rising	Static. Three panels in sequence; margin meter rises last. 3s.
89	The same logic runs the bonus industry.	Wide shot. A corporate payroll scene. Two compensation structures side by side: HIGH BASE SALARY (steady, weighted, blue) vs LOW BASE + BIG BONUS (bonus arrives gold, treated as windfall). The total is identical. The mental account is not.	Wide shot	Flat, white, blue vs gold compensation	Bonus structure is a mental accounting tool	Two compensation structures; identical total; different mental account treatment	Static. Both structures present; total amounts match; account treatment differs. 2s.
90	The same logic runs the consumer credit industry. Not the interest rate. The friction removal.	Wide shot. A credit industry diagram. The interest rate percentage sits in a corner, deliberately small. Center stage: a large FRICTION REMOVAL system diagram — the real product. Bold label: 'THE PRODUCT IS THE FRICTION REMOVAL.'	Wide shot, industry diagram	Flat, white	The reframe — credit's real mechanism named	Credit diagram with friction removal center-stage; interest rate minimized; label	Static. Friction removal diagram dominates; interest rate is peripheral. 3s.

#	SEGMENT (NARRATION)	IMAGE PROMPT	CAMERA	LIGHTING	MOOD / TONE	CHARACTER ACTION	VIDEO MOTION
91	Every contactless payment, every one-click purchase, every subscription that bills silently in the background is an engineered reduction of the pain of paying.	Wide shot. Three panels: contactless terminal (tap — pain zero), one-click button (click — pain zero), subscription icon pulsing quietly (billing silently — pain zero). Each has a pain meter at zero. Bold unifying label: 'ENGINEERED PAINLESSNESS.'	Wide triptych	Flat, white, zero pain meters	Three weapons — named and shown	Three payment mechanisms; each with zero pain meter; unified label	Static. All three pain meters read zero simultaneously; label appears. 3s.
92	The account determines the behavior. The behavior determines the profit.	Wide diagram. A three-link chain: ACCOUNT → BEHAVIOR → PROFIT. Each link solid, connected, inevitable. The profit end glows green. Bold label: 'THE CHAIN.'	Wide diagram shot	Flat, white, green profit end	The mechanism complete — the chain is closed	Three-link chain: ACCOUNT → BEHAVIOR → PROFIT; profit end glows	Static. Chain links appear left to right; profit end glows last. 2s.
93	Mental accounting appeared in academic literature in 1985. These industries had working versions of it long before anyone published a paper.	Wide timeline. A horizontal line marked: 'CASINOS — 1950s' / 'CREDIT CARDS — 1960s' / 'LOYALTY PROGRAMS — 1970s' / 'ACADEMIC PAPER — 1985.' Each industry marker appears before the academic marker. Bold label: 'THEY KNEW FIRST.'	Wide timeline shot	Flat, white	The industrial precedence — the science confirmed what industry already practiced	Timeline with industry markers predating academic publication; THEY KNEW FIRST label	Static. Industry markers appear first; academic marker appears last; label lands. 3s.
94	Here is what Thaler actually concluded.	Medium shot. Thaler figure returns — now older, more settled, at a clean desk. Expression: calm and precise. He holds a single index card with his conclusion on it, face-down. The character watches from the side. The room is quiet.	Medium shot	Flat, warm neutral	The real conclusion arrives — unhurried	Older Thaler at desk; conclusion card face-down; character watching	Static. Thaler's expression is composed and certain. 2s.
95	Not that humans are broken. That humans are predictable.	Wide shot, white background. Two bold statements side by side: 'NOT BROKEN' (with a gentle crossing-out of a broken icon) / 'PREDICTABLE' (with a steady waveform icon). The second statement is the more powerful one. Thaler stands between them.	Wide shot	Flat, white	The reframe — more useful than condemnation	NOT BROKEN vs PREDICTABLE contrast; Thaler between them	Static. Both statements appear; PREDICTABLE carries more visual weight. 2s.
96	The accounts are consistent. The triggers are consistent. The behavior that follows is consistent.	Wide stacked diagram. Three rows, each with a steady green consistency waveform: 'ACCOUNTS: CONSISTENT ✓' / 'TRIGGERS: CONSISTENT ✓' / 'BEHAVIOR: CONSISTENT ✓.' All three waveforms in sync. Orderly, measurable, real.	Wide stacked diagram	Flat, white, green waveforms	Predictability is the opportunity — not the problem	Three consistent waveform rows; all green and synchronized	Static. All three waveforms appear and hold in steady sync. 3s.
97	Which means if you can see the accounts, you can audit them.	Wide shot. The main character now holds a magnifying glass. They are examining their own mental account filing cabinet — the same EARNED / WINDFALL folders from earlier. The magnifying glass reveals the labels clearly. Expression: focused and capable.	Wide shot	Flat, white	The agency — the viewer can do this	Character with magnifying glass examining own mental account folders	Static. Magnifying glass moves slowly across the cabinet; labels visible and clear. 3s.
98	The bonus that feels like a windfall is compensation. Name it that the moment it arrives.	Wide shot. A bonus envelope arrives. Instead of filing into the gold WINDFALL folder automatically, the character intercepts it — relabels it with a blue COMPENSATION sticker — and files it into the EARNED folder deliberately. Expression: calm and intentional.	Wide shot	Flat, white	The first audit — simple and actionable	Character intercepting bonus; relabeling from windfall to compensation; filing deliberately	Static. Relabeling action is deliberate; EARNED folder receives the envelope. 2s.
■■ THE REAL CONCLUSION ■■
99	The loyalty points that feel like free money are the portion of your spending the company returned to you.	Wide shot. A loyalty points card — but now decoded. A transparent overlay shows: these points = €X of your spending returned. Bold label: 'YOUR MONEY RETURNED.' The gold windfall glow fades; it becomes neutral — neither exciting nor shameful.	Wide shot	Flat, white, neutral tone	The second audit — demystifying the points	Loyalty card with YOUR MONEY RETURNED decoded overlay; windfall glow fades	Static. Overlay appears; glow fades to neutral. 2s.
100	The casino chip is fifty euros. Every time you reach for it, translate it back into the number.	Close-up. A casino chip in the character's hand. A small translation overlay appears: '= €50.' Every time the hand reaches for another chip, the overlay refreshes. The brain inside the skull now watches with its alert expression — no longer smug, but watchful.	Close-up	Flat, warm casino light, translation overlay	The third audit — naming the chip restores the signal	Chip with €50 translation overlay; brain alert and watchful, not smug	Static. Translation overlay refreshes each time chip is touched. 2s.

#	SEGMENT (NARRATION)	IMAGE PROMPT	CAMERA	LIGHTING	MOOD / TONE	CHARACTER ACTION	VIDEO MOTION
101	Thaler won the Nobel Prize in Economic Sciences in 2017.	Wide shot. A flat Nobel Prize medal — gold, clean, elegant — displayed on a white background. Bold label: 'NOBEL PRIZE IN ECONOMIC SCIENCES · 2017.' Thaler stands beside it. His expression: the specific quiet satisfaction of someone who was told they were wasting everyone's time.	Wide shot	Flat, white, gold medal	The vindication — earned over decades	Nobel medal; 2017 label; Thaler with quiet satisfaction beside it	Static. Medal glows softly; Thaler's expression holds. 2s.
102	He had spent forty years being told he was wasting everyone's time.	Wide timeline. A horizontal line from 1975 to 2017 — 42 years. Along the line: recurring dismissal icons (crossed-out thought bubbles, closed doors, shaking heads). The Nobel star appears at the end. Bold label: '42 YEARS.'	Wide timeline shot	Flat, white	The journey — the decades of dismissal before the prize	42-year timeline with dismissal icons; Nobel star at end; 42 YEARS label	Static. Timeline populates left to right; Nobel star arrives last. 3s.
103	It started with a bowl of cashews at a dinner party in 1975.	Medium shot. The dinner party scene from the beginning — the cashew bowl on the coffee table, the warm amber light, the relaxing guests. The same image, but seen differently now. Small label: '1975.' The bowl is the whole story.	Medium shot	Warm amber, identical to earlier scene	The return — the full circle closed	Cashew bowl scene returns; warm and familiar; 1975 label	Static. Scene is identical to the opening dinner party beat; recognition lands. 3s.
104	The insight it produced — that every financial decision you make is shaped not by how much money you have, but by which mental account the money is in — is one of the most replicated findings in the history of economics.	Wide diagram. The central insight laid out cleanly: NOT [amount] → DECISION. But [ACCOUNT] → DECISION. The account box is highlighted. Around the diagram: small citation icons representing dozens of replications. Bold label: 'MOST REPLICATED.'	Wide diagram shot	Flat, white, account box highlighted	The finding at its most precise — the key sentence	Central insight diagram; ACCOUNT highlighted not AMOUNT; replication citations	Static. Diagram appears; account box illuminates; citations populate. 3s.
105	And the industries that want your money understood it before the Nobel committee announced his name.	Wide timeline. The industry markers from earlier return — CASINOS, CREDIT CARDS, LOYALTY PROGRAMS — all preceding the NOBEL marker. A corporate figure watches the Nobel ceremony from a distance, arms crossed, unsurprised. They already knew.	Wide timeline shot	Flat, white	The final industry statement — unsettling in its timing	Industry markers preceding Nobel; corporate figure unsurprised; already knew	Static. Timeline holds; corporate figure's unsurprise is the point. 3s.
106	You cannot stop your brain from keeping mental accounts.	Medium shot of the main character. The brain inside the skull is filing automatically — EARNED here, WINDFALL there — the folders moving on their own without the character's input. Automatic. Below conscious control. The character can't see it.	Medium shot	Flat, white	The honest limit — but not hopeless	Brain filing automatically below character's awareness; automatic filing visible	Static. Folders move on their own; character is unaware of the filing. 2s.
107	The system runs below the threshold of conscious thought. It was there before you knew the word for it.	Wide diagram. A horizontal consciousness line across the center. Above: the character's deliberate thoughts. Below: the mental accounting system running quietly — folders, signals, triggers — all active and invisible. Label: 'BELOW CONSCIOUS THRESHOLD.'	Wide diagram shot	Flat, white	The depth of the system — below reach but not invisible	Consciousness threshold line; mental accounting active below; label	Static. System below line is detailed and active; above line is calm. 3s.
108	But you can learn to read the filing.	Wide shot. The character now has a window into the filing system — a small transparent panel in their own chest through which the EARNED / WINDFALL folders are visible. The character examines it calmly. A magnifying glass in hand.	Wide shot	Flat, white, soft chest panel glow	The capability — seeing is the first step	Character with transparent chest panel showing filing system; magnifying glass	Static. Chest panel glows softly; magnifying glass positioned. 2s.
109	When money arrives — any money — ask one question before you do anything with it.	Wide shot. Money arrives from above — any kind, all types. The character catches it. Before filing, before spending, before anything — a single bold pause symbol appears. A question mark floats above. The pause is the practice.	Wide shot	Flat, white	The habit introduced — the pause before the filing	Money arriving; character catching; pause symbol appearing; question mark above	Static. Pause symbol appears before any action is taken. 2s.

#	SEGMENT (NARRATION)	IMAGE PROMPT	CAMERA	LIGHTING	MOOD / TONE	CHARACTER ACTION	VIDEO MOTION
110	Which account is my brain putting this in?	Close-up. The mental account filing cabinet with its two folders — EARNED (blue) and WINDFALL (gold). One folder begins to open automatically. The question mark floats above: which one? The character's hand hovers, choosing to observe rather than react.	Close-up	Flat, white, folders visible	The question — the entire practice in one line	Filing cabinet with two folders; one opening automatically; character observing	Static. Cabinet holds; automatic filing paused by the question. 2s.
111	And is that the account I would choose if I were choosing deliberately?	Close-up. The same filing cabinet — but now a second, deliberate hand appears beside the automatic one. The deliberate hand points to a different folder. The two hands are visible together: automatic vs chosen. The choice belongs to the character.	Close-up	Flat, white	The second question — autonomy reclaimed	Automatic hand vs deliberate hand at filing cabinet; two choices visible	Static. Both hands visible; deliberate hand points to considered choice. 3s.
■■ THE ENDING ■■
112	The bonus, the win, the gift, the refund — your brain has already filed them somewhere.	Wide shot. Four money types arrive and are instantly auto-filed by the brain — bonus to WINDFALL, win to WINDFALL, gift to WINDFALL, refund to WINDFALL. All four go to the same folder automatically, instantly, before any conscious thought.	Wide shot	Flat, white	The automatic system — the default is already running	Four money types auto-filed to WINDFALL instantly; no conscious input	Static. All four file to WINDFALL simultaneously; speed is the point. 2s.
113	The only question is whether you agree with the filing.	Wide shot. The same four money types — but now the character stands at the cabinet, reviewing each filing with a pen. Some stay in WINDFALL. Some get moved to EARNED. The character makes deliberate choices, one by one. Expression: calm and capable.	Wide shot	Flat, white	The agency — the audit is possible and practical	Character reviewing and adjusting auto-filings deliberately; pen in hand	Static. Character moves items with deliberate intention; expression is composed. 3s.
114	Every video on this channel is one way your financial gut has been hacked.	Wide shot, white background. The main character faces camera — the brain inside the skull now with its composed, watchful expression (not smug). A row of small icons stretches behind the character: dopamine, bandwidth, somatic markers, mental accounts — each labeled. The channel's mission is visible.	Wide shot, direct address	Flat, white	Channel mission — the promise to the viewer	Character facing camera; row of channel topic icons behind; brain watchful	Static. Topic icons glow softly; character holds direct address. 3s.
115	This is how they got to your windfall before you did.	Wide shot, closing frame. The industry figure from earlier is shown reaching into a gold WINDFALL folder — taking the contents — before the character has even received the money. The character walks toward the folder and finds it already half-empty. Expression: recognition, not defeat. Now they know.	Wide shot	Flat, white	The closing image — recognition and agency, not despair	Industry figure at windfall folder before character arrives; character sees and recognizes	Static. Character's expression is recognition and understanding — not defeat. Final hold. 3s.

END OF PRODUCTION DOCUMENT · 115 beats · ~1479 words · ~11 min narration